

Apple Mentorship Engagement: AWSEM

(Apple Women in Science & Engineering Mentorship)

At Apple, we believe that inclusion--the behavior that empowers the differences among us--inspires innovation. We would like to invite you to participate in the Apple Women in Science & Engineering Mentorship (AWSEM) program. We are looking for aspiring women engineers and scientists who feel they could benefit from receiving mentorship from one of Apple's engineers working in hardware design or software.

Who:

Undergraduate women pursuing engineering/technology careers

What:

Connect with Apple engineers working in hardware design, manufacturing or software

Why:

Pick the brain of a working engineer. Gain career information, insights, strategies, support, networking, and experiences outside the classroom. Get access to technical and personal development workshops.

When:

October 2020-June 2021

What is involved:

- Informal mentorship sessions throughout the year with your personal mentor (timing to be decided by you and your mentor)
- In addition, there will be optional workshops opportunities to enhance your personal and technical developments, and to bring you awareness of different engineering disciplines and careers.
